Auto Sales & Service partnered with RocketBuild to design and develop their progressive web application, called Auto Sales Direct. The solution provides an easy way for customers to acquire wholesale vehicle inventory. They also needed a website to help market their new car sales app.

The website showcases their new digital product — introducing the sub-brand, explaining the value of the technology, and presenting screen grabs with simple instructions for using the application. The one-page site conveys pertinent information and includes clear calls-to-action to download and signup to use the tool.
